GOALS FOR CITY ARE LISTED BY MAYOR

Plans On New Sub-Station Are Shown At The Council Meeting

Seen & Heard ♦ Around ♦ MURRAY

Want your name perpetuated into the far distant future? It's easy, just donate some suitable land in the southwest part of the city as a city park area.

Mayor Holmes Ellis last night expressed the hope that someone would contribute this land and in return the park would be named for the donor.

FIVE DAY FORECAST
LOUISVILLE, Ky. 9P — The five-day Kentucky weather outlook, Saturday through Wednesday, by the U.S. Weather Bureau:

Temperatures will average 3 to 5 degrees above the normal highs of 83 to 88 and normal lows of 60 to 66 with minor daily changes.

Rainfall will average about a tenth of an inch or less west to one-half inch east as showers early next week.

In other action last night the audit of the Murray Natural Gas System was explained by Joe Pat Treathan member of the firm of Richardson and Treathan. The audit revealed that the system is in excellent condition financially. The council approved the audit and extended their thanks to Jack Bryan for the efficient operation.

Harry Peston was named as a member of the Murray Planning Commission.

The second reading was given to two ordinances one to exempt taxes for the Murray Kent Corporation for three years and the other fixed penalties for damage or destruction of public property.

An ordinance was also approved on the first reading to prohibit truck traffic on Johnson and Story between 12th and 16th streets.

A public hearing will be held on June 22 on the tax rate in the City of Murray. This public hearing will be held in the Murray City Hall on the second floor.

Plans on the new fire sub-station were studied by the council. James Ruddy Allen, chairman of the Fire Committee reported to the council that Pat Gingles of the firm of Clemmons and Gingles of Nashville will draw the plans. He will also design the color scheme for the building.

The new sub-station will have room for four firemen, a day room, locker room and a large area for the equipment. Parking space will be provided behind the building which is designed to fit in with the residences in the area.

The sub-station will be set back from 16th Street to be in line with homes already constructed. It is to be located on the corner of Locust and South 16th streets. Fireman Paul Jerry Lee wrote a letter to the City Council thanking the council for the three day (Continued on Page Six)

Area Grant Is Approved For $184,200

Sidney H. Woolner, Acting Regional Director, Middle Atlantic Regional Office (OEO), announced today a grant of $184,200 to Calloway, Graves, Marshall, and McCracken counties, Kentucky, for a nine-month Nelson Amendment program.

The applicant agency is the Purchase Area Economic Opportunity Council, Inc. and the local share is $18,766.

After a one week orientation program, 60 chronically unemployed persons will begin Phase I of the program which concentrates on the beautification of parks and recreation areas. Phase II will begin during the fall and will permit trainees to obtain valuable work experience and training in the renovation of neighborhood service centers. The program will be closely knit to the development of job training and placement. It is anticipated that as the centers expand their services, the trainees will have an even greater opportunity to help themselves from poverty.

Miss Barbara Crouse Receives State Degree

Miss Barbara Crouse, a member of the Murray University High School chapter of the Future Homemakers of America, was awarded her state homemaker degree on Thursday at the state FHA convention held at Murray State University.

The University High student is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laverne Crouse of Murray Route Five and is also president of the University FHA chapter.

Miss Crouse and Miss Marilyn Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Alexander of Murray, were delegates from the chapter along with their advisor, Miss Sue Fairless, supervising teacher in home economics at University High.

The deceased was 35 years of age and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Banks of Port Wayne, Ind. His mother is the former Genevieve Wells, daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Rainey T. Wells of Murray. Gordon Rainey was in the real estate business with his father in Port Wayne.

Survivors are his wife, Rose Marie, formerly from Switzerland; his parents; and three sons, Gordon Rainey, Jr., Gregory, and Granger. Two uncles are Robert Banks and Stum Wells of Murray. A number of cousins of this area also survive.

Funeral services are being held today at two p.m. in Port Wayne with burial in a cemetery there.

Quotes From The News

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

TOU MORONG, South Viet Nam — Lt. Col. Henry E. Emerson paying tribute to Capt. Bill Carpenter after reluctantly approving Carpenter's call for napalm to be dropped on his position to protect the remainder of his attacked unit.

"Just in case things don't work out, I want you to know I'm recommending you for the Medal of Honor."

HONOLULU — Restaurant manager Yuki Irel, describing the explosion of a Nike-Hercules missile launched by the Hawaii National Guard.

"It was something like a white Roman candle . . . like a fountain. Streamers went all over the place."

TRENTON, N.J. — Lester G. MacNamara, director of the state division of fish and game, expressing irritation because a farmer shot a bear that game wardens wanted to capture alive.

"We really had hopes of saving this one. We're not happy about what happened. We thought the people in the area knew we wanted it alive. But I guess they just got wrought up."

ANTONITO, Colo. — Four-year-old Jeffrey Shawcroft, commenting on his encounter with a 400-pound bear that pulled him from his sleeping bag and tried to carry him off into the woods.

"That ol' bear scratched me, then picked me up and bit me and dropped me in the dirt. It hurt."

A Bible Thought For Today

The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. — Psalm 19:1.

All around us are the glories of God's creation. A perceptive person can find the presence of the living God, not only in the breathtaking view of the mountain, of the waterfall or of the ocean, but also in a wild flower, in a rock found by a stream or in a sunset.

The Rest of News

The Almanac

by United Press International
Today is Friday, June 10, the 151st day of 1966 with 204 to follow.

The moon is in its last quarter. The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

There are no evening stars. English journalist and African explorer Sir Henry M. Stanley was born on this day in 1841.

On this day in history: In 1898, American Marines began the invasion of Cuba in the Spanish-American war.

In 1940, Italian dictator Benito Mussolini declared war on France and Britain.

In 1942, the German gasepato burned the tiny village of Lidice in Czechoslovakia after shooting 173 male inhabitants of the town and deporting the women and children to concentration camps.

In 1953, a House committee made public records showing Boston industrialist Bernard Gold-fine paid over $1500 in hotel bills for presidential assistant Sherman Adams. In the ensuing scandal, Adams was ousted.

A thought for the day — American writer Henry Thoreau: "It takes two to speak the truth . . . one to speak and the other to hear."

REDMOND RETIRES

ST. LOUIS 1966 — Utility lineman Tom Redmond of the St. Louis football Cardinals announced his retirement Tuesday after seven years in the National Football League.

The 28-year-old native of Atlanta, who played his college ball at Vanderbilt, decided to retire because of an "excellent" business opportunity.

But the right to cut is not the same as the right to keep. Whether cut or not, those branches still belong to your neighbor. The law determines ownership of the tree by the location of its trunk, not of its branches or roots.

Thus, if it is an apple tree that overhangs your yard, you may pluck the apples because they are intruding; but you may not cut them because they are not yours.

Suppose the tree is located entirely on your neighbor's property, with no overhanging branches. Would you ever have any grounds for complaint about such a tree? You might have — if the tree is in danger of falling.

In one case a man noticed that a tree, planted by his neighbor, was rotting badly and leaning his way. But his warning to the man next door went unheeded.

Sure enough, during a windstorm, the tree finally did topple over into his house. He sued the neighbor and won damages. The court said that, even though the tree did not overhang, it posed a clear and constant danger to his safety.

On the other hand, you ordinarily have no legal grievance, if the tree isn't dangerous but merely annoying.

One home owner complained in court that a neighbor's leafy maple tree, while not overhanging his yard, did keep his house in shadow most of the day. But the court held this complaint unjustified, saying that the neighbor had full freedom to grow whatever trees he pleased on his own property.

As a practical matter, tree law is seldom tested in the courtroom, perhaps because there is seldom enough at stake to justify the

Besides, a tree — in the poet's words, "a nobler object than a prince" — usually gladdens people on both sides of the fence. If statistics were compiled, they surely would show that trees inspire more poems than lawsuits.

James Horner

Mack Jones highlighted a five-run first inning with a three-run homer as the Braves stretched their winning streak to six. Jones accounted for another run with a sacrifice fly in the seventh. Rico Carty also homered for Atlanta and Ken Boyer connected for the Mets off Tony Cloninger, who raised his record to 5-6.

Leo Cardenas' single in the eighth inning scored pinch runner Dick Simpson for Cincinnati's winning run. Jay Jay, who allowed only five hits, turned in his first complete game of the campaign and first shutout since June 19, 1965.

Hazel Rt. 2 News

By Mrs. George E. Liville

It has been sometime since we felt up to gathering any news. We enjoyed the nice rain Monday which we were needing, but seems it didn't go very far south.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Farthing and children were last week visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Lassiter Hill. They are leaving for their home in Macon Ga., Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. (Bubba) Hill and Robyn Dawn were Thursday night guests. Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Taylor were Sunday afternoon callers of the Hills and Mrs. Leona Curd.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe H. Curd visited Henry Morris Sunday afternoon in Paris, Tenn.

Mrs. Mavis Elkins and Mrs. Bertha Simmons visited Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Smith and Mrs. Ella Hamilton Sunday afternoon and stopped by to see Grundy Fawcett who is recuperating from an appendectomy performed last Wednesday at the Murray-Calloway County Hospital. Several others were there also to visit the Fawcetts and the Smiths.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Allbritten and children of Murray were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Allbritten. Kris spent Saturday night with his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Simmons of Detroit, Mich., were here last week visiting their families. They were Monday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oren Simmons and Mrs. Bertha Simmons and on Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Simmons, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilhite, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Housden and daughters, and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe King and children were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eunice Housden and son.

Mr. and Mrs. Oren Simmons visited Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carr Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Simmons spent Tuesday with Mrs. Ocas Allbritten. Recent guests of the George Liv-villes were Johnny Dale, Mrs. Bertha Simmons, and Mrs. Buford Barton and son, dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Shoemaker, Loyce Morris of Detroit, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Hughes, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lamb, Mrs. Ethel Lawrence, Mrs. Hilton Williams and children, Nancy and Chuck, Gail Purches, Mr. and Mrs. Loyal Bucy, Jan Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Simmons, Mrs. Orville Housden, Mrs. Bertha Stone, Mrs. Glen Farthing and children, Deana and Kent, Dwain Stubblefield, Mrs. Rena Clark, Mrs. Ollie Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Moody, and Mrs. Lassiter Hill.

Mrs. Katy Miller is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Noah (Bernice Buchanan) and family are expected to be here soon from Spokane, Washington, for a short visit. Carlton Buchanan from Charleston, S. C., and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Milner of Savannah, Tenn., all hope to get together to see each other and all the families.

So sorry to hear of the death of my niece, Mrs. Eva Weath, who died April 28 at her home in Tracy, Ky.

Kentucky Bell had a call Monday from St. Louis, Mo., reporting that my granddaughter, Mrs. Mary Ann Williams, is very ill.

Mrs. Madeline Bennett of Hazel returned home Monday after a visit with relatives and friends in Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Thorn of Evansville, Ind., were guests of their grandmother, Kentucky Bell, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thorn and children and Mrs. Fay Wiley of Princeton, Ind., were guests of Mrs. Thorn's mother, Mrs. Katie Simmons of Murray from Friday until Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Edith Tyler was a caller of Kentucky Bell late Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Thorn and children, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Thorn, Mrs. Fay Wiley and Kentucky Bell enjoyed a nice trip to the lake Saturday.

Mrs. Myrtle Sparks, guest of her sister, Mrs. Katie Simmons of Murray, for the month of May, returned to her home in Bowling Green, May 30. While here they visited Mr. and Mrs. Nollie Smith, Mrs. Willie Dreisbach, and Mrs. Bettie Davenport, all of Paducah.

"The timid hand stretched forth to aid."

A brother in his needs. The kindly word in grief's dark hour.

That proves a friend indeed. The plea for money gently breathed.

When justice threatens high. The sorrows of a contrite heart.

These things shall never die." Kentucky Bell sends best wishes to all.

NEW REFUGES

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Migratory Bird Conservation Commission has authorized establishment of new wildlife refuges totaling 15,262 acres in Indiana and California.

The new refuges, announced Tuesday, are the 7,260-acre San Luis National Wildlife Refuge in the San Joaquin Valley, 20 miles west of Merced, Calif., and the Muckleshoot National Wildlife Refuge near Seymour, in southeastern Indiana, 7,922 acres.

ARRIVES FOR VISIT — DAKAR, SENEGAL (AP) — Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol arrived by plane from Paris Sunday to begin a series of state visits to seven African nations. He was greeted at the airport by Senegalese officials and the Israeli ambassador.

FETS MEASURE — WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee has approved a measure to insure that Rover and Kitty "may walk in their own yards and be safe."

The committee approved a bill aimed at preventing the theft of pets by dealers who peddle them to research laboratories. "The legislation will make sure that pets may walk in their own yards and be safe," said Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash.

Farmer-Lanier Wedding Vows Solemnized In Ceremony At First Methodist Church

Mrs. David Alan Lanier

The secretary of the First Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Dorothy Beth Farmer and David Alan Lanier solemnized on Saturday, June 4, at two o'clock in the afternoon with Rev. Donald Moorhead officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence H. Farmer, 1319 Poplar Street, Murray, and the groom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. I. Houston Lanier, 1121 Main Street, Sturgis.

Vows of fidelity, chrysanthemums and gladioli were placed on the altar of the church. Matching candles flanked each side of the altar to further enhance the wedding scene.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Richard Farrel, organist, and Ernie Rob Bailey, soloist. Mrs. Farrel played several selections and Mr. Bailey sang "Happy Is the Home" and "Calm As the Night."

Bride's Dress

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her floor-length dress of embroidered or-

'Sweet Thing' May Change Her Tune

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was a 31-year-old man who is very much in love with a 22-year-old girl. I know you think I'm crazy, but Abby, this really loves me. She even broke up with a young good looking man just for me. She worked for me a short time, but we didn't want any talk around the place, so I had her quit. My problem is my wife. She won't give me a divorce.

Our children are grown, and I offered her a very good settlement, but she refused it. Abby, my girl friend is the sweetest, most unspoiled little thing in the world. She is just the opposite of my wife. She appreciates every little thing I've given her, like a small, inexpensive car, some clothes, and taking care of her mother's hospital bill. I would gladly give up my last dime to be free to marry this girl. But how?

DEAR IN: Make your wife a better offer. She might surprise you. But I don't advise you to "give up your last dime" for your freedom because that "sweet, unspoiled little thing" might also surprise you.

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. I had several appointments with a reputable physician regarding a physical ailment. During one of these appointments I confided a very closely-guarded secret about my personal life. He assured me it would go no further. This morning a friend told me she had heard something "unbelievable" about me. Then she recounted in the very words I had used to tell my doctor, exactly go. Should I give her a taste of her own medicine? I'd like to put a stop to this.

SHE-WOLF'S HUSBAND: Suck the medicine. But tell your wife to keep her eyes front or some stranger will eventually call her bluff and you will be compelled to fight for her honor. And there's always a chance that you might lose.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

HYPOCRISY IN HIGH PRICES

In a recent speech at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C., Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman made a desperate attempt to take the Administration off the hook for its charge that farmers were to blame for inflation.

It was not too clear just where the blame for the false charge, but it seemed he was pointing a finger at the "big city press."

Here's what the Secretary said: "But six months ago, when the city press awoke to find the surpluses nearly gone, the farmer found that he had become associated with a new term—"inflation." Now that he had kicked the surplus problem and had gained slightly better prices and a good boost in income, many of the same people who once charged surplus and subsidy were now accusing the farmer of inflation."

A week earlier, in a radio press conference, in answering a question as to why food is mentioned so prominently with regard to inflation, the Secretary said, "...the worst culprit in using food is some of the big city newspapers. They're making a whipping boy out of the farmer every time..."

In selecting a scapegoat for the Administration's own blundering statements, the Secretary apparently has decided that he would rather make an enemy of the newspapers than farmers.

The hypocrisy of the Secretary's approach is quite transparent to anyone who reads the news. The newspapers merely quoted what Administration spokesmen had said, and these spokesmen all blamed farm prices for the rising cost of living and the inflationary trend in our economy.

President Johnson appeared on national television news and cited farm prices as an inflation threat in an attempt to divert public attention from the real cause of inflation—irresponsible government spending.

The President said, "Prices are moving up too fast to be comfortable. Eighty percent of all these price increases come from two items: One is farm prices for food." He further advised housewives to stop buying food items that were going up in price. In addition, he directed government agencies to quit buying butter for the Army, to halt its pork purchases for the Armed Services, increased the quota on cheese imports, and put a ceiling on hide exports. All of these actions were taken to beat down farm market prices.

The press, both small town and big city, duly reported the President's words and actions. In fact, if it were not for alert and responsible newsmen in Washington, the order cutting pork purchases "never would have been made known to the public."

Secretary Freeman excused the temporary news blackout on the pork purchase cutback by saying the action was "routine," and denied his part in recommending the move. But when he wrote to Robert McNamara, Secretary of Defense, asking that Secretary Freeman's pork order be rescinded, he sought wide publicity for his "Dear Bob" letter.

Others on the President's staff have joined in the loud clamor about rising food prices.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, before a recent convention of the Super Market Institute in Chicago, said, "A decline in retail food prices in the year ahead can make a vital contribution to avoiding our getting entangled again in that dreary wage-price control spiral which we know too well from the past."

In the same speech, he also said, "Recently, the support price for milk was increased in the hope that it would help to encourage a larger output. By assuring producers that they will get at least this higher minimum, we may well obtain lower actual prices on milk than would otherwise be the case."

On April 16, Mrs. Esther Peterson, special assistant to the President for consumer affairs, said, "Increases in food costs have been the most dramatic and visible of all the price increases, and food has been one of the chief causes of recent Consumer Price Index rises."

Now, who is making the farmer a whipping boy?

Income Tax Questions-Answers

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U. S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q.—Before I send in the information the service center requested on my return, I want to check on something I may have forgotten to include. Can I get the answer to my question from your local office or do I have to go to the service center?

A.—Your local Internal Revenue office can answer general tax questions, but because your question is about a return already filed and in process at a service center, it would be better if you inquired there when you furnish them the requested information.

Q.—My wife and I plan to rent our house instead of selling it. What kind of records should we keep on rental income and expenses?

A.—The tax laws do not specify what records you should keep but only that they be sufficient to prepare a complete and accurate income tax return. Canceled checks, invoices or other records to clearly identify dates, amounts, nature and purpose of expense payments and the name of payee should be maintained, as well as a record of rents received.

If you are converting the house from your personal home to rental property, you must know both the cost basis and the fair market value at the time of the conversion. The cost basis, which you pay for may be charged as expenses against rental income. Additions to the house, such as a porch or patio, that increase the value of the property or prolong its life should be added to the cost basis and depreciated over the remaining useful life of the building.

Q.—If my son earns over $600 this summer, will I lose his deduction? He is a college student.

A.—As long as he is a full-time student (or is under 19) and you provide more than one-half his support, you may continue to claim him if he otherwise qualifies as an exemption. He must file his own return, however, if he makes $600 or more during the year.

Q.—We have agreed to provide a home for a 10-year-old orphan this summer. Can we claim a deduction for the child?

A.—If you have the child with you only during the summer then no deduction may be claimed. To qualify as a dependent, he child must be a member of your household, live with you the entire year and obtain more than half his support from you.

Q.—I've started earning a few extra dollars doing some freelance work. Can I take care of my tax liabilities by increasing my withholding on my regular job?

A.—Yes. Increased withholding may be used to take care of the increased tax liability you will have from freelance earnings. You can claim fewer exemptions on Form W-4 or ask your employer to take out additional amounts. If your income from self-employment will be $400 or more during a calendar year, you may be liable for self-employment tax.

GRAHAM ON TELLY

LONDON 67 — Evangelist Billy Graham, credited with converting more than 1,000 persons since he began his nightly preaching here Wednesday, will appear on two television shows this weekend.

The North Carolinian will appear Sunday on the British Broadcasting Corporation's half-hour discussion program "meeting point" to discuss his "Greater London Crusade" with TV personality David Frost.

That night, Graham will appear on Independent Television's "Eamon Andrews show" which has featured appearances by a wide range of personalities.

FAIR PRISON FARE

WASHINGTON 67 — They may not have the most relaxed atmosphere you could find in a restaurant, but you can't beat the prices. That was the gist of commentary Friday on the restaurants at federal prisons, which serve thousands of employees and prison visitors each year.

The General Accounting Office, watchdog of the budget, said the flat 56-cent fee for meals was so low the government was losing $100,000 a year. The bureau of prisons rejoined that food costs were lower, and anyway, "the prison setting does not provide the relaxed atmosphere available in commercial and other agency dining rooms."

New for Collectors

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

If you're title-hunting for your cookbook collection, here are some new hot-off-the-press editions that may be of interest.

The Art of Mexican Cooking by Jan Aaron and Georgina Sachs Salmon.

Americans who believe that Mexican food is one big tortilla surrounded by chili peppers are in for some delicious surprises. Mexican cuisine, say the authors, is one of the most varied and exotic in the world. They've proved this point with an appetizing collection of recipes.

Their book is a fascinating one, with historic footnotes on famous dishes and with restaurant tips the traveler will relish. The recipes are excellent and what the appetite for south-of-the-border specialties. The Czechoslovak Cookbook by Jozs Brizova.

Rye Bread Soup is just one of the novel recipes you'll want to try in this collection. Like many of the Czech dishes, it features sour cream.

Stuffed Cabbage Head (it's stuffed with beef, veal, pork or ham) and Dumplings with Smoked Meat also arouse the interest. The dessert section of the book—and it is extensive—is outstanding.

The volume includes 500 recipes selected from Czechoslovakia's best-selling cookbook and adapted for American cooks.

The Chatelaine Cookbook by Elaine Collett, edited by Mary-Elita Macpherson.

From north of the border, comes an excellent basic cookbook of Canadian recipes that's ideal for bride or seasoned homemaker.

The collection includes over 1,000 recipes, the best of more than 10,000 that have appeared in a popular Canadian magazine. Many are specially identified as time-saving, budget, low calorie, hostess or gourmet. Shopping, storing and freezing tips are included. The book is a gem, one you'll refer to often. It tells how to make everything, including good coffee.

La Cuisine Chantrelle by Charles Chantrelle. Travelers who have enjoyed the fabulous cuisine of the Restaurant Chantrelle in Brussels will rush out to buy this book, for it contains the secrets of the chef.

Very simple dishes are in the minority, but most of the recipes are within the skill of anyone at home in the kitchen. They take time, but efforts are rewarded with veritable masterpieces.

Chicken Cookery Round the World by Henriette Holthausen. Chicken pleases on many counts. It's flavorful, rich in food values and still a good buy.

For those anxious to expand their repertoire of chicken recipes, Mrs. Holthausen opens the door to countless tempting possibilities including Portuguese chicken in pie-crust; Italian creamed chicken with rice and asparagus; Spanish chicken with prawns and mushrooms; delicious Greek section of the subdivision regulations, completion of elderly housing units, purchase of a lot for the fire sub-station, and completion of a sewer project started in 1963.

In speaking of the goals for the coming fiscal year, Mayor Ellis told the council that it admittedly is ambitious, but that it is feasible.

Mayor Ellis listed the goals for the coming year as follows:

1. Construction of fifty (50) units of elderly housing.

2. Construction of sub fire station on South 16th Street.

3. Construction of building at City Park with office, storages and rest room facilities.

4. Construction of city maintenance building to be financed by city owned utilities.

5. Acquire acreage for new park in Southwest section of city.

6. Determine feasibility of consolidated billing by city owned utilities: Electric, water and sewer, and natural gas systems.

7. Comprehensive revision of zoning ordinance.

8. Preparation and adoption of central business district study which will include designation of possible urban renewal areas.

9. Expansion of sewer disposal plant and water and sewer systems utilizing federal funds, now authorized in amount of $292,000.00, and insurance of approximately $250,000.00 in revenue bonds.

10. Provide for sale of city water for two public water districts now being organized in Challoway County.

CHAPTER 15

Monday 3:50 P. M.
HAVING resumed the Mexican border before the four o'clock deadline, Lieutenant Neil Lavery and spread his patrol in a thin line. Using the crumbling ruins of Casa Triste, an ancient Spanish fort, as a temporary headquarters, he had quickly paired off the twenty-two men of "A" Company.

Starting at quarter-mile intervals, he had sent his riders out, two at a time. Approximately half of them moved to the east while the others rode west. By this means, he had hoped to achieve maximum coverage of the border.

What had happened to his carefully laid plan was something beyond anyone's control: the wind.

Since morning there had been hardly more than a breath of air stirring. Yet, only a short time ago, the wind had risen, coming howling in across the Sonora desert. It whipped sand in front of it with a force that stung like buckshot. Although Lavery knew such quick-born storms seldom lasted more than an hour, he also knew it lasted for days. This knowledge had forced him to make a decision: he did not like. Before the driving dust and sand thickened to the point where no one could see, he had been forced to call in his patrol.

Now, standing in the unprotected doorway of the ruins, Lavery watched a pair of his men ride up and dismount. Sheltering their horses as best they could behind a wall, the two cavalrymen moved toward him. One he recognized as lanky Sergeant Ingersol. Even through the swirling dust the three chevrons on his sleeve were unmistakable. Lavery did not recognize the other soldier until he stepped up to the doorway. It was Private Chris Hollister, a dark-skinned twenty-year-old who had recently enlisted.

"Did you see any of the others coming in?" Lavery said as Ingersol entered.

"I wouldn't worry too much about em, sir," Ingersol said, smiling faintly. He added, "If you want, I'll get much stronger. I'll show em in."

Although Lavery did not feel like smiling, he nodded indulgently. "There's one consolation, I suppose," he said. "If we can't move, the Apaches aren't likely to be very active, either."

"No, sir," Ingersol said. Turning to Hollister, he said, "Come on, Chris. Get the sand off your feet." He was starting to move off when he saw the young enlistee was not following him. "With the lieutenant's permission," Hollister said quickly. "I'd like a word with you, sir."

"Go ahead," Lavery answered, mildly surprised.

"Dammit, Chris," Ingersol said, "I told you—"

"I know what you told me, Barge," Hollister said. "And I appreciate your advice. But this is something that has to be done."

"Puzzled, Lavery looked from one to the other."

"Abruptly, Ingersol said, 'Suit yourself, Hollister. There was an edge in his voice as he added, 'But don't say you weren't told.'"

Lavery watched his three men walk off. Then he turned with a trace of annoyance to Hollister. "All right," he said curtly, "what's it all about?"

"It's this patrol, sir," Hollister said. "I'd like to ask the lieutenant's permission to leave it."

"I doubt if he knew what he was doing," Ingersol said. "He's been having the devil's own time."

Glancing at a trickle of blood that seeped from Hollister's mouth, Lavery said tightly, "He disobeyed a direct order."

"Oh, no, sir," Ingersol returned with a pained expression. "With all that wind out there, I doubt if he even heard you."

Lavery watched Ingersol carry his burden toward the men. Most of them were on their feet now, well aware of what had taken place. It was a serious breach of discipline, Lavery found himself wondering if he could afford to overlook the incident. At the moment, he could see no way to do so.

"Even before Dix Reardon turned, he knew it was too late. A muscular Apache, armed with a knife, sprang out of the brush and drove into him..." The story reaches a climax tomorrow.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This house is near completion. Located on the south side of Perry Ann Drive, it is listed for sale with Roberts Realty.

Weatherstrip
Saves Fuel,
Aids Comfort

If your windows aren't weatherstripped, you may be putting up with expensive and annoying house problems unnecessarily.

Effective weatherstripping performs many functions. Most important, it can save you money while keeping your house warmer in winter and cooler in summer. Tests conducted by the University of Minnesota's Institute of Technology showed that air infiltration from non-weatherstripped windows accounted for about 37 percent of total heat loss in an otherwise well-insulated five-room house. When weatherstripping was used, heat loss from air infiltration was reduced to 17 percent and fuel cost savings amounted to 24 percent.

In some instances, the homeowner must install his own weatherstripping. Modern stock window units of ponderosa pine, however, have weatherstripping applied in the factory.

Factory-weatherstripped wood windows also keep warm air from seeping into the house in summer, taking the strain off air conditioners and cutting cooling bills. By making the window units airtight, weatherstripping also seals out wind-borne dust and small insects so the house stays cleaner.

To do its job effectively, weatherstripping should be of good quality and properly applied. Factory installation assures this. You can check weatherstripping by holding a lighted candle near the edge of a window on a windy day. If the flame wavers or blows out, the weatherstripping is probably faulty. Drafts near window areas also indicate faulty weatherstripping.

Sometimes, the effectiveness of weatherstripping is lost because windows are not completely closed. To insure a tight barrier against air infiltration, heat loss and dust, it's best to lock windows after they are shut.

Kitchen 'Extras'
Become Standard

The modern home buyer wants more than a house. Inside, he looks for features like an up-to-date kitchen. Outside, he likes attractive landscaping and some community extras, such as a pool and country club.

Modern homebuilders are meeting these requirements in a number of ways.

For example, Levitt and Sons, Inc., the country's largest homebuilding organization, makes it a practice to include as standard equipment those home features which some builders still consider optional. Most recent was the introduction of modern, two-door refrigerator-freezers as standard kitchen equipment in two community complexes. This year, the new double-door refrigerator-freezers will be included as standard equipment in four other Levitt communities.

Such practices are part of William Levitt's concept that "a house is not enough." As early as 1947, when the first Levittown was built on Long Island to provide low-cost housing for returning G.I.s, the company was providing a complete range of equipment, a refrigerator and automatic clothes washer. By 1963, Levitt was building communities with a choice of seven different house styles, each including at least two baths and such features as a refrigerator-freezer and a modern wall oven.

Another way the company meets consumer needs is with "total construction," the production of entire communities complete with schools, shopping centers and recreational facilities. One of the new Levitt communities has 45 acres — almost 25 percent of its total area — devoted to recreational facilities, including boating, swimming and all-weather tennis courts. All Levitt homes are landscaped.

The company's awareness of what the buyer wants, plus a system of on-site construction which cuts costs and keeps sales prices down, revolutionized the post-war building industry and forced other construction firms to follow suit. The realization among buyers that they could expect in Levitt homes those features and equipment that were optional with other builders, helped to make Levitt a household word.
